IAAF Strategic Plan has six Core Values: universality, leadership, unity, excellence, integrity and solidarity, and a Vision Statement: "To lead, govern and develop the sport of athletics in all its forms worldwide, uniting the Athletics Family in a spirit of excellence, integrity and solidarity." The relationship between IAAF President Lamine Diack and General Secretary, IAAF Member Federation and Education Commission member Rogelio Lizama-Quiroga (Lizama) has been strained in recent weeks.

The IAAF's decision to suspend the membership of Nigerian Allyson Felix on the grounds that she had received illegal performance-enhancing substances is too harsh. And it has now come as a shock to its critics. At the IAAF Ethics Commission, that role is expected to be the responsibility of a former Senior Deputy Prosecutor in a leading anti-drugs court in Brazil.

Judging is a tough job and, at the elite level, to be successful, you need to be fair and correct. In his case, IAAF President

Lamine Diack announced the suspension of the 800m gold medalist last week. But he cited Article 31 of the IAAF constitution that does not mention an athlete is entitled to a hearing. The IAAF has itself been attacked on this issue but, if you read the Article 31 on the IAAF website, it is clear that an athlete is not entitled to a hearing. The independent technical commission that decided the case decided the matter based on documentary evidence. According to that evidence, Felix tested positive for EPO (Erythropoietin) after she had been tested positive in the Commonwealth Games and world indoor championships. The decision to suspend her now, on the grounds that the evidence was flawed, is too harsh. It is an action that goes against the very ethos of athletics. At the All England Club, sportsmanship is a crucial ingredient in the success of a sportsman or woman and it is the same spirit we promote at the world championships. It is not fair to criticise the IAAF without reference to the facts. The World Anti-Doping Agency has published figures which show that more athletes have tested positive at the World Championships than the Olympics and more athletes have tested positive at the World Championships 82157476af
